As the 49 pilots gathered for the pilots' meeting on Site 4 for the beginning of day one of ALES, they were greeted by low clouds, wind, and cool temperatures. The forecast called for scattered showers and wind of 10 to 20 mph. There was no rain, but the wind was already a factor to be dealt with.

Except when there were minor technical difficulties, the five flight groups over six rounds were run by a prerecorded voice broadcast by speakers.

The first round was flown under a very cloudy sky and a steady wind. There was lift to be found, but it was elusive. Even under these conditions, pilots were getting their 10-minute flights, but only with searching far and wide for the lift.

As the second round started, the cloud cover remained and the wind picked up, making flying and landing a challenge. As we broke for lunch, Larry Jolly was leading the pack in first place with his consistent flights and landings.

After the lunch break, the sky started to clear and the notorious Muncie lift and sink cycles started and unfortunately, so did the midair collisions! In total, there were four midair collisions in the four afternoon rounds.

Many of the flight groups in the four rounds of the afternoon were able to find booming lift, taking them extremely high and far downwind and testing the pilots' eyesight. There was some doubt among the spectators that some of the planes would even make it back to the field to land, but somehow they all managed to.

At the end of the six rounds flown Friday, Jonathan Garber was in first, followed by Larry Jolly, then James Marcicki as the top three. Day one proved to be a very challenging contest weather-wise. Saturday calls for more of the same weather to test these pilots' skills to stay on top. 🏆

The last day of the Nats had fewer events and no rain in the forecast. And, the day's flying wasn't as hectic with logistics of having too many events to fly. There were only four AMA, seven NFFS, and five FAC events.

Summing up the week, this year's Nats went smoothly thanks to our CD Greg Simon, plus a number of volunteers who helped. They are the ones who make this contest all work. Consider volunteering next year or whenever you plan to attend. Don't just be an attendee—be a part of it. It's really fun when everybody chips in and you get to meet some great people.

By Friday, many of the competitors had gone and the crowd count dropped by perhaps 30%. Yet there were still the gas fliers making noise in the northeast corner, with the Rubber and FAC fliers scattered west of them. These included competitors in E NOS and some in Hi-Start Glider.

FAC brought out the Rubber Scale models, Modern Civilian Scale, and Peanut. Tack on a World War I (WW I) Mass Launch, and you see some great-looking models fly. Previously, Rubber Scale was a judging event but with the adoption of FAC rules, it has transformed into a flying event which is great to participate in and watch.

The day started out pretty calm with the wind picking up at roughly noon. Models were going the full length of the field in two minutes, and as on other days, the maxes kept piling up.

If you look at the summary of scores posted, there were about a half-dozen flying, while 35-plus entered. The same was true for C/D Classic. Super D had only one flier posting a score.

When you got to P-30, the fun started. In Senior/Open, 16 fliers fought hard. It took nearly four maxes to be in the top three. Four Juniors and three Seniors flew too, with respectable times. Kyle Gerspacher scored a 588, which could have placed him third in the Open class! In 1/4A NOS Gas, young Hayden Ashworth bested seven fliers—winning the event by 1 second over Denny Dock! Another achievement!

FIS had Lee Hines at 720 (six maxes!) to take the event. Stan Buddenbohm was close, only dropping 6 seconds behind Lee.

OT Rubber Stick had six flying and Bobby Hanford outran them all with a max-out and in PeeWee 30, Rick Pangell took first place.

In the FAC flying:

- Rubber Scale was won by Ted Allebone flying a Pegna PCI.
- Peanut Scale was won by Wally Farrell flying a Buster.
- Jet Cat was won by Don DeLoach.
- Modern Civil was won by Wally Farrell with a Cessna 140.
- WW I Combat was won by Wally Farrell with his Martinside S-1.

That wraps up a very successful 2017 Nats, and we hope to see you there next year!

At the banquet Friday night, awards were handed out for pilots in the Sportsman, Intermediate, and Advanced categories. The awards for the Masters and FAI classes will be presented on Saturday afternoon.

Also during the banquet, Ron Chidgey was given a special award for his contributions to RC Precision Aerobatics. Ron has been instrumental in defining the Precision Aerobatics activity and was the chief judge in the US.

A top competitor having been on the World Championship teams throughout the years, Ron was also instrumental in designing Pattern-type airplanes that advanced the activity into the modern age of RC Precision Aerobatics.

The Masters finals and the FAI finals will be held on Saturday. 🏆
